...ck raisers use water in freedom of it; some allow owing stock intended for free access to water until they are fat enough to be killed and fattened for market. On the other hand, there users having no water on arms, except in wells, who of us successful and raise birds as those who have r. A very noticeable difference supplies, and "watering" the latter, is prettier number. ...
Houses for ducks are simple affairs. They are built plain and comfortable, and have no furnishings whatever. A duck is differently constituted from a hen, and must be housed for different conditions. The hen needs warmer houses and drier surroundings than does the duck. A duck does not mind the cold if she can keep her feet warm. Cold feet will affect a duck as a frozen comb does a hen, rendering her unable to fly and will bring on death. ...
There is no means of protection against weather. Ducks are at night exposed to the elements, and for this reason they are not kept in pens.

Ducklings are kept in brooder houses until they are 4 or 7 weeks old, when they are transferred to large houses. It is here that they are trained for the market, and for this reason they are not kept in pens.
